TEMPORARY RELAPSE

Bull Pools Liquidate and the Share List Weakens.

Wall Street Developed a Downward Movement that Was Not Alarming-Local Grain Lower and Weak.

At New York, yesterday, money on call was easy at 1 per cent.

Prime mercantile paper, 3@31/2. Sterling exchange was steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.8812@ 4.88% for demand and at $4.87@4.87% for sixty days; posted rates, $4.88@4.89\/2; commercial bills, $4.8614@4.8616. Silver certificates, 58%@59%c. Bar silver closed at 59%c per ounce; at London, 27%d. Total sales of stocks aggregated 145,100 shares. There were signs of liquidation of small bull pools in the stock market yesterday, and it was evident, also, that the short interests were imbued with a belief that the conditions were favorable for a downward movement. The speculation was less active than for some days past. The prospective passange of the seigniorage bill (the vote was not announced until about the close of the market) had a rather depressing influence on the speculation, by reason of the fact that the bears prophesled dire results if it should become a law, suggesting that heavy gold exports would follow, and that American securities would depreciate in value on the London Exchange. Union Pacific's statement for January, which showed a heavy decrease in net earnings, also tended to help the short side of the market. But, withal, there were periods of strength, and in the late dealings there was evidence of a desire to buy back many of the stocks sold earlier in the day. Within the last quarter of an hour the temper of speculation underwent a radical change, and on very strong buying an advance of 1/401 per cent. was made in the general list, and 21/2 per cent. in Cordage. But, while the market closed strong, a majority of the list was below the closing figures of Wednesday 1/4 to 11/2 per cent. Chicago Gas lost 3/6 at the opening, but rallied, and under good buying adper cent. During the afternoon a recovery of % took place, of which % was lost at the close. London was a seller of the arbitrage specialties, including St. Paul, which sold down at a final recovery of %. The other granger stocks lost \40\\frac{1}{2} on the day. General Electric opened \4 higher, but was at once subject to a bear raid, which sent the figures down 24. In the final trading sales to recover brought about a recovery of 1. Atchison was sold by London and Boston, yielding %, with a late rally of 1/4. Just before the close a strong buying movement was developed in Cordage, which had reacted 1/4 in the morning, and the shares sold up 21/2 per cent., re-

was rather heavy for the active securities, but the usually inactive bonds made advances, as follows: Michigan Central sev-

LOCAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE. Trade a Little Off Yesterday and Changes in Values Slight.

The rain of the morning yesterday checked trade somewhat in some departments. Only wholesale grocers are busy, regardless of weather condition. Every month develops growth in this branch of business so far as Indianapolis is concerned. Wholesale confectionery houses are keeping up well with the volume of last year. On Commission row there is more activity and less grumbling. Eggs are lower, poultry higher, butter weak and oranges scarce. Irish potatoes are firm at quotations. In a jobbing way provision men are doing a good deal of business, with prices all along the line easy. The hide market is active, dealers buying all they can get hold of, hoping for a better market in the near future. Wool dealers have but little to say as to what prices they will pay for wool when the clip comes on, except that prices will surely be low and disappointing

The New Breed of Animals Being Raised by a North Dakota Man. San Francisco Chronicle.

William Weavey, of Durbin, N. D., is engaged in raising "cattleo," or half-breed buffaloes and domestic cattle. The word "cattleo" is a compounding of the two words cattle and buffalo. Mr. Weavey re-cently brought three of his half-bloods and four pure buffalos. They are very handsome animals, of different ages, and the cattleo, which are young, are of a rich seal brown color and as fat as young moles. Mr. Weavey, who is a pioneer of Dakota, was, for some years, extensively engaged in raising wheat. One year he raised as much as seventy-five thousand bushels, but later he retrenched. Four years ago he hit on the novel industry of raising cattleo, and now he sees much money in it. The reason for this is that both the meat and the skins are vastly more valuable than of the buffalo or cattle. Mr. Weavey at first had much trouble in getting a cross that would survive. Many men had tried it, but, as a general thing, it was a failure. Mr. Weavey brought a number of buffaloes to his farm and made many experiments. At length he tried a cross of the polled Angus breed of cattle with the buffalo, and soon began to get results that were entirely satisfactory. At first the young cattleo died. being brought forth at the wrong season of the year, but in time Mr. Weavey learned that if they came with the new spring grass of the prairies they would flourish like the grass. He began with one buffalo bull and a polled Angus cow, and now has as pretty little a herd as one could Besides he has sold skins and meat enough to bring him a handsome revenue. The skins are much superior to those of the full-blood buffalo, the fur being finer and longer and of uniform seal-brown color. They are worth on the average from $100 to $150 apiece, but one skin was so fine that he got $250 for it. The meat is at least 50 per cent. finer than buffalo, too, partaking of the native wildness of that ani-mal and the high blood of the polled Angus. The latter breed is black, which accounts for the rich uniform color of the cattleo. Out of both the skins and meat, therefore, it will be seen that if they thrive with anything like the certainty of domestic cattle there is plenty of money in it. But another thing has been discovered which was unlooked for, and that is that the cattleo are much larger than the buffalo. Two of Mr. Weavey's yearling cattleo now weigh over 1,100 pounds. One of the cattleo, too, oddly enough, is without horns, like the polled Angus cattle, which never have any horns. The cattleo show the heavy shoulders and stout neck of the buffalo, but not to the degree, by any means, of the latter animals. Altogether they are pretty and doclie animals. His object in bringing them to San Francisco was to exhibit them at the fair and thus illustrate what could be done in propagating a new bovine race, which, in his judgment, is to succeed and prove much more valuable than the buffalo. He rears them on his Dakota farm in the same way as cattle, giving them only the attention which his domestic cattle receive. He says that the trouble heretofore in all the attempts that have been made has been in not hitting on the right breed of domestic cattle, as well as the failure to have the cattleo born in the spring with the grass.

SULLIVAN'S PROTEGE.

The "Wonderful Boy Soprano" Who Travels with the Show. New York Advertiser. John L. Sullivan has a "wonderful boy soprano" now traveling with him, and as the youngster may be heard here before long, the story of how John found the little singer and their queer friendship may It happened in Clinton, Ia., where he was playing an engagement last October. During the day a little bootblack approached Mr. Sullivan's business manager and asked to be allowed to distribute handbills to earn a free ticket to the show. After the per-formance the crowd of boys and men who hang around the stage door after the show were there, and among them the little bootblack, who it seems had a hankering for show life, and was singing a song for the rest of the boys. The sound of his voice reached Sullivan's dressing room, and he sent his dresser out after the singer and had him brought into his room. He told the lad to sing him a song. The boy was a Lit frightened at first in the presence of the great John L., but after a little coaxing to sing a song he did so So impressed did the "Big Fellow" become with the boy's voice that he proceeded to question him and learned that the boy was an orphan blacking boots and selling papers for a living, and a very poor Niving at that. He asked the boy if he would like to travel, and if there was any one who could stop him from doing so. The boy answered and said that it was the wish of his life to travel with a theatrical company, and that there was none to say nay. Thereupon John L. had the courts appoint him the boy's guardian, and he is now traveling with the Big Fellow, living at all the first-class hotels at which Mr. Sullivan stops, and of which the boy's fondest dreams had never thought of. He appears in the performance of "The Man from Boston" in ness in Wheat Around 58c.

CHICAGO, March 15 .- The market for wheat was under the bearish influence of the fine seasonable weather all day. Notwithstanding much encouragement from other sources, the close was 4c lower than on the day before. Corn and oats each lost 4c of their revious value, but provisions broke the monotonous decline of the speculative commodities and closed 10c higher for pork and .071/2c higher for lard and ribs. There was a heavy business done in wheat during the first half hour of the session. The market opened weak at about the price of puts for the day. Some little buying against those privileges started at once, but the pressure to sell was such that many held their privileges to take advantage of the lower price which the great apparent weakness at that time seemed to justify the expectations of. The looked for further decline was not long delayed. In | the first half hour May declined from 58%c to 57%c, with one sale recorded at 57%c, while the rush to sell was at its height. The weather was perfect. Northwestern receipts were again fairly liberal and in excess of those of last year. English cables were lower. There was some recovery from the depression suggested by the above when New York dispatches reported the taking there at that early period of the session of from twenty to twenty-five boatloads of wheat. Export clearances were again quite liberal, amounting to over 400,-000 bushels in wheat and flour. New York got the export takings up to fifty boat-loads before the close, and reported about half of it No. 2 spring and half red winter. The market firmed up a little more on that and May sold at 58%c, with last sales at

Corn was weak and business rather slack. The decline in wheat was against the price, and reports made yesterday by receiving houses that country offerings were increasing seemed to have confirmation in estimated receipts here for to-morrow of 285 carloads compared with 168 cars to-day. Receiving and shipping houses were seller: Some long corn was sold out and the chief buying was for short account. The opening price for May, 37%c, was the highest of the day, and 37%c the lowest up to about twenty minutes from the close. The market closed with buyers at 371/2@37%c and sellers at 37%c. Business in oats was very limited. Values were lower, influenced by the weakness in

The provision market was rather easier for a few minutes, but the shorts appeared satisfied with the break which had already occurred and were fairly liberal buyers. Business was light and principally confined to local speculators. After several fluctuations the market closed strong near the top. Compared with last night, May pork is 10c higher, May lard .07½c higher and May ribs .07½c higher. Estimated receipts for to-morrow are: Wheat, 45 cars; corn, 285 cars; oats, 200 cars; hogs, 20,000 head. Leading futures
